Dear Friends in Cloghereny & Sixmilecross

I trust that you are all continuing to manage with the present challenging circumstances. I am pleased to report, that with the easing of the coronavirus restrictions your Kirk Session and Committee are working towards returning to Worship services in the Meeting House, no date has been set yet and we will keep you up to date as the situation progresses.

However, Aughnacloy & Ballymagrane have decided to work towards reopening on Sunday 5th July. This change will also change the online format, which will be one of the services recorded and placed online later that day, each week.

In the meantime, may I encourage you with this week's worship service, our theme being 'Salvation, Saviour' Psalm 34.

As usual, this week's service can be found by following the link from Aughnacloy and Ballymagrane face book page or directly on Aughnacloy and Ballymagrane You Tube channel. While you are on You Tube there are many other worship service broadcasts too, may I also direct to the Moderator each Sunday on the PCI main Web page.

Announcements:

Keep This in Mind Please

In light of the present Coronavirus pandemic it is uncertain when our congregations will be able to meet again, it may not be before the end of June. This is will impact upon our congregations' regular income. With this in mind can we encourage you, if you are able to continue with your regular giving, this can be done through a bank standing order or making direct electronic bank transfers. Bank details for your congregation can be forwarded on request, either through your congregational treasurer or myself, to individuals. If this is not possible, we request that you continue to fill up your church envelopes on a regular basis and put them on the offering plate when the current restrictions are lifted.

Keep Safe and God Bless you all
